To Whom It May Concern:

Ratib Asghar (performer's name Bobby Asghar) gave his credited portrayal of the 'Italian Apothecary' in Cuba Pictures and BBC America's production of 'Jonathan Strange and Mr Norrell' based on the novel of the same name by Susanna Clarke,

His performance in the Victorian period fantasy / drama opposite Bertie Carvel, Lucinda Dryzek, Clive Mantle and Vincent Franklin on location in the town of Trogir, Croatia was extremely good and the fact that he was bi-lingual helped in a number of ways, not least that the director was able to communicate with him directly.

Both myself and Toby Haynes (the Director) would have no hesitation recommending him for further acting work in the future since he is professional and good to work with. He has all our support for his submission to your organization for membership. Should you have any queries please feel free to call me at my office in London.

Your sincerely
